On top of Jelinjak hill lies a small family-owned restaurant, where you can find excellent food with amazing views.

The menu offer is modest, but you can order Dalmatian Peka (veal, lamb or octopus), sheep cheese or ham and Babic wine.

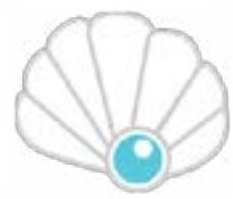

St. Anthony's channel in Sibenik is one of the most beautiful parts of the Adriatic coastline and most lavish maritime entrances to a city.

Beside the wonderful natural beauties, Sibenik Archipelago and St. Nicholas fortress, this channel hides numerous cultural and natural values.

There are many well-arranged trails, pier and panoramic viewpoints. Cultural and recreational facilities offer a variety of activities in the area - walking, jogging, Nordic walking, cycling, sightseeing, sport competitions and more.

Krka National Park is a far-reaching and primarily unaltered area of extraordinary natural value.

Apart from natural beauties, the park includes many ruins of Early Croatian fortresses from the 14th century.

Kornati National Park is a separate and special island group located between Sibenik and Zadar islands. The island group has long been attracting yachtsmen, divers, mountaineers and other nature lovers.

The Archipelago is divided into two groups, Upper Kornati – Sit and Zut island chain with 51 land units and Lower Kornati with 89 land units.
